Abstract of the Talk

This webinar explores how to engineer hypergrowth by architecting intelligent, cloud-native digital commerce platforms that run in multi-cloud environments while meeting demanding targets for scalability, low latency, reliability, and a consistent customer experience. We'll break down the core building blocks of large-scale commerce and show how they fit together as a cohesive platform. The session highlights practical principles and patterns such as modular domain services, event-based integration, global readiness, multi-region resilience, observability, and cost-aware operations- along with the pitfalls that commonly derail platform scale. Attendees will leave with a clear, high-level blueprint for building flexible, cloud-portable platforms that evolve safely as organizations experience hypergrowth.
